ROCK COUNTY WILL HAVE SANATORIUM

MEMBERS OF COUNTY BOARD AFTER VOTING DOWN SANATORIUM QUESTION RECONSIDER IT AND APPROPRIATE MONEY FOR OPTIONS ON SITES

INCREASE TO SHERIFF

Fred Beley Sheriff Elected Granted An Additional $1,000 To Cover Traveling Expenses During His Term

Determined not to let anything go untended to secure favorable action on the resolution of Supervisor McCarthy recommending an appropriation of $32,000 for a tuberculosis sanatorium, George Woodruff, president of the board, opened the session of the county board to reconsider the resolution. The motion was carried by a vote of 19 to 15.

The resolution had been voted down during the morning, after one of the hottest debates ever witnessed at a meeting of the county board. During the morning it was voted to adjourn the afternoon session of the county board to reconsider the resolution. This did not meet with the approval of several of the members and during the noon hour reports were current that unless the matter was reconsidered, the members would leave meeting and resign as members of the county board. It was previously erroneously reported that W. L. Paulson was one of the members who had left the meeting. The question had passed, the arguments started again. Emmett McGowan, one of the leaders fighting to have the resolution reconsidered, immediately called on his feet.

Mr. McGowan again stated emphatically that he was not opposed to such an institution, but he believed it should be laid over until the April meeting. Then George Woodruff jumped to his feet and requested that Mr. McGowan be returned permission to talk and answer the subject. McGowan was allowed to continue, and told in a clear concise manner his various reasons for not favoring the question at this time. This ended one of the greatest debates ever waged in the county board.

William Perrigo, George Woodruff, W. L. Paulson, Simon Smith and W. H. Paulson also addressed the meeting in favor of the resolution and a vote was then called for. It was evident before the vote that several of the members had changed their opinion and that the resolution would carry. A vote was taken and adopted by a vote of 20 to 14 with six members absent. This ended one of the greatest debates ever waged in the county board.

George Woodruff then introduced a resolution asking for an appropriation of $3,000 to be used in taking options on sites and securing an architect. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote. Supervisor Paul introduced a resolution to have the sum of $15,000 transferred from the general fund to the Asylum fund. The resolution was adopted. Supervisor W. H. Paulson asked for an appropriation of $20,000 to install a central heating plant at the County Farm, the order was carried.

Attorney T. D. Woolsey then addressed the meeting on behalf of Sheriff Beley. He requested that the salary of the sheriff be increased to $1,500, stating that it was impossible to operate and maintain the county jail on the money now allowed.

Mr. Woolsey described in detail the tremendous expense the Sheriff was under and that with the cost of living increasing it was unprofitable to board the prisoners and also make a living wage out of the money allowed by Rock county.

Supervisor Paul introduced a resolution allowing the Sheriff $500 for expenses for traveling and work done in the county and an additional $500 for work done out of the county, such as taking prisoners to Wapun, Mendota and other state institutions. The resolution was passed and the committee ordered to make a contract with Mr. Beley.

However, it is understood that Mr. Beley will not sign a contract at these figures.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette: As an old soldier of the sixties, in our own country, I am much interested in your article relative to "A Liberty Building" in Janesville. Some time prior to the raising of the soldiers' monument in the court house park quite a number of our citizens did what we could to have a memorial hall instead of the monument spoken of, but to no avail. The county supervisors had the matter in charge. The monument, the proposed memorial building at the time named would have cost about $5,000 more as planned. This excess was offered by that great soldier, friend, the late J. M. Bestwick. However, we were glad to have as a substitute the monument, if the building named could not be obtained. We thought $15,000 would be sufficient for such a structure as would be required, i. e., a commodious fireproof building of cement, brick and steel, having in its interior accommodations for the safe keeping of men, the use of any and every description, and a place for the free assembling of every loyal person—the Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish-American soldier, Women's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R. or any kindred association; and we thought it should be sufficiently endowed, and its care placed in the hands of loyal representative women of men for year to year. Now that the matter is renewed, on account of our brave, good young soldiers, who are soon to return, I sincerely hope we may soon have the pleasure of looking upon such a permanent edifice, and that the Bower City may be glorified.

E. O. KIMBERLEY.

J. FRANCIS CONNORS LAID AT REST TODAY

All that was mortal of the late J. Francis Connors, was tenderly laid at rest at Mt. Olivet cemetery this morning after most impressive services at St. Patrick's church, where requiem high mass was celebrated at nine o'clock. The priests in attendance were Fathers Mahoney, James McGinnily, Wittenmann, and Neumann. Father Mahoney delivered the sermon, which was most touching, and told of the sterling worth of the deceased and the loss his family and friends had suffered by his death. The pall-bearers were all close and intimate friends of the deceased. One of them, Ervin Clark, of Ft. Sheridan, accompanied the remains to the city; the others were Earl Puzell, Lewis Brown, Louis McCarthy, James Heffernan, and Jerome Hartnett. At the cemetery two large autos laden with floral tributes, were waiting, and the grave was literally buried with flowers. The members of the Lakota club attended the funeral in a body.

The family left to mourn his departure are his mother, Mrs. Isaac Connors, and Isaac Connors of this city, and Joseph Emmett Connors, in service in France, all brothers, besides numerous uncles, aunts and cousins.

FRIDAY'S MARKETS.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Southern and eastern markets are glutted with young hogs weighing 100@150 pounds, despite government price support, and local receipts are freighted with shots that would pay $1.50 per bushel for all the corn they could consume during the next ninety days. The attitude of the country is puzzling in view of the fact that the food administration has extended the $17.50 minimum period until Jan. 1.

Nashville, Tenn., was glutted yesterday, and conditions at other markets prompted Everett C. Brown, chairman of the food administration stabilization committee, to appeal to the country for a respite. If growers insist on jettisoning underweights they will be penalized, packers' policy being to buy good hogs and permit trash to accumulate. Shrinkage is one-half to one per cent daily, which the packer declines to stand. About 100,000 hogs will reach the eleven primary markets this week and, as labor is scarce, handling them is impossible. The food administration has been able to continue the $17.50 minimum by prospective expansion of trade by opening the markets of central Europe, and dumping immature hogs shows lack of appreciation. Announcement that the during December strengthened good hogs, but trash met a poor reception.

Cattle Hold Advance.

Cattle held the early week advance of 50c to $1 per cwt., but the pace slackened. The advance has been due to curtailment of the western movement, only small packages of beef coming from beyond the Missouri river this week. The stream of beef from that quarter will shrink next week, forcing killers to take native butcher cattle and cheap steers, but the market is on a healthy basis and will hold under moderate supply.

Hazelton's Series of Stories By Famous Duck Hunters of America

THE CHESAPEAKE BAY DOG.

By William C. Hazelton.
The Chesapeake Bay dog is the one distinctly American breed of dogs originating this side of the water and developing here.
For about one hundred years there have been bred about Chesapeake Bay a breed of dogs called the Chesapeake Bay dog. The history of this breed is partly authentic and partly traditional. About the year 1805 there arrived at Baltimore a ship called the "Clanton," which at sea had met with an English brig bound from Newfoundland to England, in a sinking condition. On this ship were found two puppies, a dog, which was brown in color, and a bitch, black. These puppies were rescued and became the property of a Mr. Law. The dog was named Sauter, and his mate, Antion. The dog passed into the hands of Governor Lloyd of Maryland, and the bitch became the property of Stewart of Sparrows Point. Their progeny became the Chesapeake Bay dogs.

A Chesapeake flat in ducking weather is just another edition of the Atlantic in the grip of a nor'easter. This is the native habitat of the Chesapeake Bay retriever. These are the conditions which have made him what he is. It has taken a hundred years and more to develop him. The result, as might be expected, is a dog much different in type from other dogs and of distinctly high efficiency for the purpose in view. He has to be big and powerful, considering those miles of water-travel after crippled ducks and the half-hour swims in ice-cold water, with perhaps six or eight dives to a depth of six or eight feet each time. It is not muscle alone, either, for a lot of it is his spirit. You can't take the heart out of him. He is not sensitive or easily insulted, as a Collie sometimes is, and no amount of chill, slush, hard ice, snow, tide, waves or undertow or current will faze him very much. He will stand baffling, stand, as long as he has his beloved water, with its chances for paddling about and living, the vicissitudes of life do not worry him much. He will not quit his work from a lack of courage, and he has the stamina to stick it out under the worst conditions all day long.

In general they depend more on their keen eyes than on their nose, marking the game as it falls. In the blind they are obedient to a superb extent—almost to the point which convinces you that they understand what is required as you do, or a little better. When you have shot for a while and told your Chesapeake to "fetch," he rises to his feet and calmly surveys the field. He goes for the crippled first and gathers his harvest in systematically by rounds. Thanks to a coterie of sportsmen in the Middle and Far West, and particularly in Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas, interest in this great breed of retrievers has not entirely lapsed, and many excellent specimens are being bred by W. H. Orr, Mason City, Iowa; Earl Henry, Albert Lea, Minn.; Ray Leonard, Ayova, Iowa and others.

The late J. F. Parks wrote as follows concerning these grand dogs:

"The Chesapeake Bay Dog has been developed to a very high state of perfection on the shores of Chesapeake Bay and has been used as retrievers by duck hunters in that locality for a great many years."

"In color they range from a deep seal brown down through the varying shades of brown to a very light sedge or 'faded buffalo' color, and in coat from the smooth, wavy, short coat to the heavy thick coat resembling very much the sheep pelt. These dogs have what is known as the double or outer coat, the under coat being very thick and furlike, while the other coat is of coarse hair. This difference in color and coat seems to occur in almost every litter of puppies, and just why this is so is a mystery."

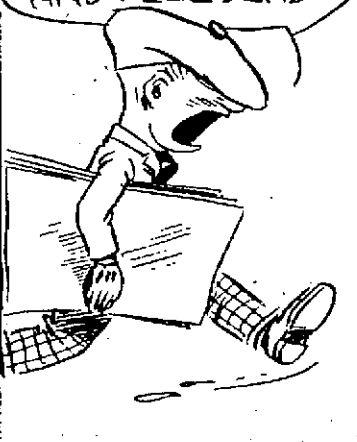

"The thoroughbred Chesapeake is absolutely fearless and was never known to quit under the most trying conditions. Deep mud, tangled rice beds and rushes, as well as extreme cold, has no terrors for them."

"In order to be in a position to fully appreciate these dogs, one must come in actual contact with them and enjoy their companionship. They are without doubt, the wisest dogs in existence, and as companions, they are simply in a class by themselves. As a rule they are what is known among sportsmen as 'one-man dogs.' That is, they recognize but one master, and when they are properly trained to retrieve, an owner need not worry about getting his own duck, when shooting with others in a marsh or on a river."

In disposition the Chesapeakes are most extraordinary. They are quiet and do not like to be disturbed, while watching over a stool of decoys, by other dogs and people not connected with the sport at hand. Some may think them sullen on that account, but they are never vicious or quarrelsome either with dogs or people. They simply want to be left alone. To them life begins and life ends retrieving and tolling for ducks. Their minds are never connected with other things. The smooth, wavy, short-coated dogs are the most desired by some, because they can more thoroughly shake off the water and dry out more quickly. The smooth and curly-coated Chesapeake Bay retrievers are not distinct strains, as many suppose; they are both whelped from the same litter, the color ranging from a seal brown to a light sedge.

STATE CONVENTION OF D. A. R. CLOSES

INTERESTING SESSIONS WERE BROUGHT TO AN END FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

DELIGHTFUL SESSION

Was the Topic Under Discussion Throughout the Meeting—Officers Elected to Continue Policy.

Pledged to reconstructive work after the war, stands the chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution of the state. And the new state regent, Mrs. Rudolph D. Hartman of Milwaukee, who was elected yesterday to that important position, is well qualified to see that this policy is carried out. Mrs. Hartman has been regent several times of the chapter at Milwaukee, has been prominent in affairs of the D. A. R. of the state, and is very familiar with the duties to which she is called by being elected to this office. Under her able management the administrative affairs will undoubtedly be very ably taken care of for the next three years. The Milwaukee chapter, which is one of the most important in the state, was highly gratified that this honor was given to one of their members. Mrs. A. C. Umbreit of Milwaukee presented the name of Mrs. Hartman to the convention, and after a most eloquent speech, just before the session closed at noon yesterday. The other officers elected to fill the positions of state officials were: Vice-regent, Mrs. D. E. Decker, of La Crosse; for recording secretary, Mrs. E. W. Blaisdell of Waukesha; for corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. E. Lohr of Janesville; for financial secretary, Mrs. O. B. Luck of Waupun; and historian, Mrs. C. A. Harper of Madison.

The reconstruction work after the war was made the keynote of the convention. The speaker dwelt upon it and the members all seemed to feel keenly their responsibility in this matter. Besides this idea, the convention voted to endorse the program of the war community service, and do every thing possible to carry out the plans of the board in this matter. Also it was voted to endorse War Savings societies in each chapter.

OUR DEAR HEAVENLY FATHER

Our Dear Heavenly Father, We come before Thee, with due reverence and love, making that Thy divine blessing may rest upon us. We thank Thee most graciously for the great Peace that has recently come to this suffering world. We pray Thee, all those in sickness and sorrow. We ask that special guidance be given to the president of our United States. Watch over and keep him from all harm, and endow him with strength and great wisdom, at this trying time. Bless our brave and noble boys, who have been fighting for Life and Liberty. They have fought the good fight, they have laid down the course, now send them safely back to us.

Guide our beloved State Regent in all the deliberations of this conference. Let the spirit of Thy wonderful presence fill our hearts with loving kindness, that harmony shall be the keynote throughout the sessions. For Thy sake, we ask this. Amen.

—Ida Pratt Kimberly, Chaplain Janesville Chapter, D. A. R., November 14, 1918.

In the state, where they were not already in operation, and placed themselves in record as a state organization as endorsing the program of the war community service.

Mrs. McMillan of Milwaukee presented the merits of the War Savings Stamps before the convention and urged their co-operation in what she said was "the great big thing in war work." She also showed to the members a new Christmas post card, which embodied the thought of the state finding a place for it on the card. This idea was enthusiastically endorsed by the convention, and many orders for the cards were taken at the desk.

She asked for help in conducting a publicity campaign, and gave out a good many bright and unique ideas, for which she wanted expression. She stated that she had just started the savings society at the School for the Blind, with an enrollment of one hundred per cent among pupils and teachers.

Wonderful reports of war work accomplished were given at intervals during the sessions yesterday whenever they could be sandwiched in between items of business. Thousands of hospital garments, hundreds of sweaters and socks, and thousands of surgical dressings and innumerable quantities of refugee clothing was reported from the various chapters of the state as being part of their war work. Besides these almost every chapter reported the adoption of a French orphan, and the Janesville chapter reported one officially adopted by the chapter, and twenty individuals belonging to it. ## Mistake Number 1

A good many people will make this mistake this evening. When they go up town they will pass the bank without stopping to make a deposit—just because they cannot save a lot of money at one time. Before long they will find their neighbor has gained on them because he was willing to make small deposits every Saturday night. Don't make mistake number 1. Come in with your small deposit. We will give you just as careful attention as if you had a big deposit. Try it and see.

We are at leisure for the rest of the day. We went on a ten mile hike this morning. Clarence McCarthy, from Edgemoor, is in the same tent with me, and three fellows from Monroe. Ed Smith is across the street. There is a canteen across the street from us. We are all up all night. We have to stand retreat at 5 o'clock and then we are done for the day. We have mess at 6:15 and get all we want to eat."

SIDE LIGHTS on the
CIRCUS BUSINESSBy D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

As I look back over the years I spent with the Adam Forepaugh show, one of the most interesting places around the show was Adam Forepaugh's office. This consisted more than of the ticket wagon and it was here that all the business during the year on the road was transacted, especially some two or three weeks in the spring and 5 or 6 weeks at the latter end of the season. With the exception of the performers from foreign countries, their contracts all read with two weeks notice. At the opening of the show (if the act was not up to the standard Mr. Forepaugh would give them two weeks notice to quit. As a rule there was always two or three, and even more that would receive their two weeks' notice at the opening of the show which was usually in Philadelphia. Business was always talked over in the ticket wagon by Adam Forepaugh, his son, Adam, and the assistant director and many times I was asked to close up the wagon the first afternoon early and go in and take a look at the new acts, for the sooner they were dropped the better for the show, and the earlier in the season the better for them for this gave them the chance to find the smaller shows and still get a season's work. While Adam Forepaugh was always ready to listen to his son, the opinion of the assistant director, yet if he got his neck bowed, it was not easy to change him. In the fall some five or six weeks before the opening of the show the same bunch would gather in the ticket wagon and talk over the different acts that were to be engaged for the next season. And many times while the acts of some of the people were good and would pass muster, so far as they were concerned, yet at times you would find them disgraced and hard to get along with and disturbing in the dressing room of the big show where there are so many people in difference how good their act may be. I have known them to lose out simply because they were trouble makers. In the early 80's four people were brought over from Europe at that time about the highest class acrobats, but that I had never seen and before the season was half over they were finding fault with the way the show was running and were slow in telling how such shows were run in the old country where they never had a show one-fourth as big as the Forepaugh show. Late in the season when the committee met to select the ticket wagon to take over the coming season, the assistant director objected to this quartet being engaged, saying that they were trouble makers and that they could find another act that the public would like just as well and would be easier to get along with. Mr. Forepaugh said: "You are the one that is to select, you should have called them down and given them to understand where they belonged and kept them there. You need not hurry about them leaving." Mr. Forepaugh, for I well know that I am paying them three or four times as much salary as they ever received in the old country, and it is the money that they are after. I am going to give them a contract for next year and it is up to you to tell them where they belong and you want them to stay there, and so far as the running of the show is concerned, that will be left entirely to the management. It was also in the office that the agents were such as directors, car managers, newspaper men, in fact, everybody ahead of the show. All misunderstandings with these men were settled there and while all of these men had a certain amount of judgment of their own to use, yet when anything out of the ordinary came up, it was Adam Forepaugh that must be consulted before any steps were taken. Yet there never was a better show to travel with for the reason that Adam Forepaugh never had a quarrel and they only had one man to please. He was not a hard task master, if they were up to date and could deliver the goods. A day or two ago I read the will of the late Paul Keith, the great theatrical manager of whom I told you of last week, and it was certainly one of the best that I ever read. While he gave liberally to the few educational institutions, yet he did not overlook the faithful employees and remember them all according to the time of their service and gave them all from $1000 to $25,000 each including stenographers, even his chauffeur was to real estate which was some four or five of the finest theaters in the country. He gave them all to Eddie Albee, the partner and manager for his father for so many years.

The M. G. Barnes Circus, which played here in August, pulled into Dallas, Tex., on schedule October 13th, ready for exhibiting Monday, October 14th, but Dallas, like most other cities in the states, was closed on account of influenza, so the worthy employees, the right honorable A. G. Barnes, gathered his brilliant advance agents from various points of the state, hitched his advance cars to a regular Pullman, he himself advanced into Venice, Cal. and the troupe, in charge of Manager Al. Sands, made a six days journey via El Paso where we took of P. R. R. Routing arriving in Venice Sunday October 20th.

Auditor Alfred Wolfe paid up all salaries members and has been kept busy the past week settling bills in towns contacted, but not played. The performers have gone to their homes, altho the St. Marks Hotel is housing a number of them.

W. J. Erickson, manager advertising Car No. 1, has received from a severe attack of influenza, as has Mrs. Bon Fountain, the wife of the manager of the side show, while the writer can flirt deftly with the Cornelia keyboard after a slight attack of the same dreaded malady.

All hands were on deck October 27th to welcome Murray Penneck, the general agent home. So Al's well and waiting for words of assurance that the "Big Tops" will crumple next season.

One of the most valuable elephants of the Barnum & Bailey herd went on rampage recently and is dead as the "Yankee" is to it. It is considered one of the most perfect specimens in the country, contaminated by attacking a smaller elephant, and after a three hours struggle Harry J. Mooney succeeded in throwing the pachyderm by attacking chains and ropes to his hind legs. Exhaustion and rage at last caused the beast to succumb.

Since peace has been declared all the shows so far as I know, are making preparations for the early opening in the spring and it is safe to say that they will be on the road next year the same as of yore.

The cinema men who are at work abroad, are to be used in the reconstruction work of the country. One of their missions will be to inform the people of the advantages of the United States in every branch of trade. They are going to try American propaganda for awhile, and boom America and American goods.

Slides are shown in the local theaters asking for recruits for a land army to work the farms, and also advising thrift in buying war saving stamps.

The Myers Theatre had a return date of Arthur Guy Empey, on Saturday and Sunday for an attraction. This is one of the best of the new pictures and has a pretty little love story woven into it.

The Beverly had for its Sunday attraction, Edith Storey in "The Silent Woman." This is the story of a home in the northern woods, where Edith is the daughter of the store keeper. The little boy of a wealthy neighbor sends her to be near him, and while on a visit there, she sees the boy's mother about to elope with another man. The mother falls down stairs and dies, and Edith keeps silent about the catastrophe, and even after the boy's father marries her, she still keeps the faith and does not reveal the terrible truth of the infidelity of the boy's mother.

A later picture, "For Husband's Only," was a unique story which had an unexpected ending. An amateur playwright and a man of the world, was the love of an inexperienced girl, only to tell her that he is not a marrying man. She marries a former soldier, and later the playwright invites the husband to the rendition of a play which makes fun of himself.

Tales of the Friendly
Forest

Well, the next morning, when the Bunny family woke up, for the little Black Cricket had sung them to sleep the night before, you remember, as I mentioned in the story, the little Black Cricket looked at his gold watch and chain. But, goodness me! It had stopped, for the minute hand was pointing at 13 o'clock and that's the last hour in rabbits' life, so I'm told.

"Wonder if I forgot to wind my watch," exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit. But he hadn't, for the stem wouldn't turn the least little bit.

"I guess the mainspring's broken," sighed Uncle Lucky. "Something is always happening, if it isn't one's watch, it's one's digestion. Now I'll go down to the watchmaker."

So as soon as breakfast was over he and Billy Bunny hitched up the Sleighmobile and went down the hill, and pretty soon they came to the old watchmaker, who was a big Black Spider, the same old Spider I told you about many stories ago, and he fixed the clock on the big tall steepie.

"What's the matter with it?" asked the old gentleman rabbit in an anxious tone of voice, for he was late on one of his old gold watches, let me tell you—almost as fond as he was of his old wedding stovepipe hat, but not quite.

"He has a touch of rheumatism in his big hand," said the Old Black Spider, and he squinted through his little magnifying glass and wiggled the gold chain with the pocket of the other end in which was the picture of dear, kind Uncle Lucky's mother.

"Oh dear, oh dear," cried the old gentleman rabbit. "That's dreadful. Will it ever go again?"

"Leave it to me," said the Old Black Spider Watchmaker, and then he poured a little kerosene on three of the wheels and wiggled the gold chain, and then, all of a sudden, that old gold watch began to strike the hour, ding, ding, dong!

"Goodness, gracious, meebus!" almost shouted Uncle Lucky, "it never did that before."

"Is that so?" said the Old Black Spider. "I guess the watchmaker you took it to before didn't know his business, and he handed the watch to Uncle Lucky."

"That's a fine watch," he said, "five dollars, please!"

Now, wasn't that an awful price to charge dear, kind Uncle Lucky, but he knew the old gentleman rabbit was very rich, you see, and besides that Old Black Spider Watchmaker had thirteen children and one wife.

And then Uncle Lucky handed him a five-carrot gold piece, and thanked him besides, and after that he and Billy Bunny got into the Sleighmobile and said away over the snow as fast as a comet or bullet might go, and in the next story, if Uncle Lucky's watch doesn't get the measles again, I'll tell you some more about these two little rabbits.

Notes on Red
Cross Work

(Arranged by Mrs. Abbie Helms.)
It is quite probable that the department of hospital garments and of refugee clothing will continue work in spite of the armistice, as new labels and directions have been received from headquarters. Since the armistice took effect, the quota of 150 skirts which was received last week is nearly all in the hands of the workers, and it is hoped that most of them will be finished and brought in next week. The quota of three hundred pajama suits for men is now being gotten ready to send out, and the process of manufacture will be much facilitated by the fact that there are printed directions for their manufacture to be included with each suit. It is expected that heads of the outfitting chapters will be in this week to attend the annual meeting of the Red Cross and it is hoped that the skirts will be brought in at that time. The quotas of pajamas may also be taken out then. The quota of coats from headquarters that the entire quota be completed before Thanksgiving.

Word has come to the surgical dressing department to discontinue work until further orders, on their dressings.

The work of the comforts committee, who have been taking care of the Christmas packages to soldiers, has been very arduous and now word comes to them that there will be no extra cartons for unassigned soldiers, as they hoped and expected. Owing to the supply is running low and there will only be enough to supply the depositions. This will be a great disappointment to the committee, as they had signified their willingness to fill a carton for a soldier.

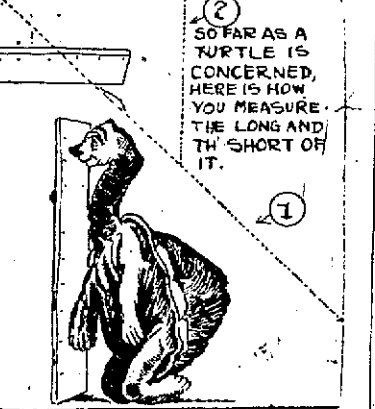

ART LEAGUE MET
FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Owing to the prevalence of the influenza the opening meeting of the Art League was delayed until yesterday when they had a gathering in Library Hall. It was a memorial meeting for those artists who had died during the year and glimpses of the biographies of many of the artists of America, or Italy, Holland, England and France were given.

Especially interesting biographies were given of Charles Backwith Redin the sculptor, and Gustav Coffin who was a noted writer on Art Topics. Especially noticeable was a biography of Edward McKey who was born in Janesville and died while doing Red Cross work in France. He was a tenant in the service, but was a noted artist, having studied in Paris and other salons abroad. Considerable business was transacted, and it was voted to adopt a French war orphan. Mrs. C. B. Childs was voted into membership. The program was under the leadership of Mrs. Edden.

Watch, it's one digestion. Now I'll go down to the watchmaker.

So as soon as breakfast was over he and Billy Bunny hitched up the Sleighmobile and went down the hill, and pretty soon they came to the old watchmaker, who was a big Black Spider, the same old Spider I told you about many stories ago, and he fixed the clock on the big tall steepie.

"What's the matter with it?" asked the old gentleman rabbit in an anxious tone of voice, for he was late on one of his old gold watches, let me tell you—almost as fond as he was of his old wedding stovepipe hat, but not quite.

"He has a touch of rheumatism in his big hand," said the Old Black Spider, and he squinted through his little magnifying glass and wiggled the gold chain with the pocket of the other end in which was the picture of dear, kind Uncle Lucky's mother.

"Oh dear, oh dear," cried the old gentleman rabbit. "That's dreadful. Will it ever go again?"

"Leave it to me," said the Old Black Spider Watchmaker, and then he poured a little kerosene on three of the wheels and wiggled the gold chain, and then, all of a sudden, that old gold watch began to strike the hour, ding, ding, dong!

"Goodness, gracious, meebus!" almost shouted Uncle Lucky, "it never did that before."

"Is that so?" said the Old Black Spider. "I guess the watchmaker you took it to before didn't know his business, and he handed the watch to Uncle Lucky."

"That's a fine watch," he said, "five dollars, please!"

Now, wasn't that an awful price to charge dear, kind Uncle Lucky, but he knew the old gentleman rabbit was very rich, you see, and besides that Old Black Spider Watchmaker had thirteen children and one wife.

And then Uncle Lucky handed him a five-carrot gold piece, and thanked him besides, and after that he and Billy Bunny got into the Sleighmobile and said away over the snow as fast as a comet or bullet might go, and in the next story, if Uncle Lucky's watch doesn't get the measles again, I'll tell you some more about these two little rabbits.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with a man eighteen and I am sixteen. My folks didn't want us to marry for two years, but I have been married for two weeks. My parents would not let me come home when they found that I was married with out their consent. They said that if I had waited and asked them they would have given us a home, but now I am afraid they wouldn't. What shall I do to get them to understand and let me come home? Do you think I did wrong? A. W.

You should not have married without their consent. They are entirely right in making your husband's parents provide for you now that he has taken you from their home. When you and he prove that you are going to make a success of your life together, your parents will be very glad to resume their former interest in you. Your responsibilities now would do you a permanent injury.

Do all you can to your husband. Encourage him in his work, and make your home, be it ever so humble, a happy place to live in. Others have begun life in worse circumstances than yours, I am sure, and they have been happy together and prospered. Prove the strength of your character before you seek forgiveness from your parents.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: While visiting my aunt in a distant town a few months ago I went to a celebration. There I met a respectable boy, as every one says. He asked me to drop him a card when I went home. I did that and we have been corresponding ever since.

He is coming to town for a visit with his uncle and he has asked to come to see me. Mother and father think it is right for him to come. But some of my relations, as well as his, think it is wrong. I do not know what to do.

What do you think will be best? I am seventeen. HENRIETTA B.

Write the boy that you will be very glad to have him come to see you. You are young to entertain young men, but since you and he are friends and will probably not meet often, you should make the best of your present opportunity. Do not consult the opinions of your relatives. If you and your parents decide that a thing is right you should act independently and not worry about what other people think.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am fifteen and in love with a boy one year my senior. He takes me to shows and rides and things. My parents allow me to go with him in the daytime, but not in the evening. We are invited to go to a party in the evening. Would it be all right for him to take me in his car, as my parents know the people who are giving the party and like them. T. C.

You are too young to go to a party in the evening with a boy who takes you in his car, as my parents would be accompanied by a member of your family when returning from the party.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Does one have to have a permit to send presents to soldiers in France this Christmas? If so, where could they be obtained? (2) What would be nice and useful present to send? N. W.

(1) Each boy is given a permit which he sends usually to his nearest relative. If outside of the country, send to a soldier they have to ask his family for permission to put something in the family box. In such a case the gift should be very small.

(2) A fountain pen, pencils, kodak pictures, or an identification bracelet would make a good present.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me if it is proper to hang a service flag in the window for one's brother or just for one's own sons.

A flag should not be hung for a brother unless he has made his home with his sister and goes to war from her house.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you kindly publish as soon as possible a few articles that one could get a man who expects to go to the army soon? He has a fountain pen, wrist watch and handkerchiefs which he has purchased. E. K. H. S.

You might give him a pocket diary or a pocket searchlight.

THE STRUGGLE

BY ZOE BECKLEY

FOR HIS WIFE'S KIN.

Edith threw her arm about her husband. "John!" she cried with a gasp in her voice. "How can you say such a thing? You know I do not accuse you. You know that I am really proud of you! There's nobody in the world who tries harder, works harder, is so dear and good to his family. When did I ever utter a word of reproach to you?"

Her husband gently freed himself. "Your actions speak for themselves," he said with quiet bitterness. The fact that they reproach me before all my neighbors; before business associates like Mulry, before the whole world—that is the least of it. It is the fact that you wake my own doubts of myself that matters so much. Every man has doubts of himself in himself to fight. It's all he can do to down them. He looks to those who love him to buck up his faith in himself. But when I see you threatening about trying anything, I am sure that I am not the only one who is not a man. I have fallen down on the most important job in life—the support of my family!"

Edith looked at him. "What she was ever conscious of her own hard problem."

"Dear," she said pleadingly, "you must believe me when I say you have nothing to reproach yourself with. And when I say that I mean it from the bottom of my heart!"

Edith did not speak for a time.

"You may think I have nothing to reproach myself with," she said. "And I do try to hide the thought from myself that I fall short as a provider."

"John, you don't!" Edith exclaimed, with a fainting heart. "Well, you certainly make it hard for me to believe it," he concluded. Edith sat down by his side.

"Listen, dear," she said firmly. "Let us be perfectly honest in this matter. Let's think with our own minds, not with others'. John, forget for the moment what the world thinks of a wife's position. Suppose I had a profession at which I could make money in my spare time. In my spare time, remember, not in my spare time, some other way. I would have a pocket watch, a fountain pen, wrist watch and handkerchiefs which he has purchased. E. K. H. S.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

ASTIGMATISM

Astigmatism means literally lacking point. I suppose only a few people know many of these Health Talks are astigmatic. But the word is generally used to signify something crooked, and these Health Talks are straight, it is always a crooked eye that is the condition in which rays of light entering the eye are not focused to a point as they should be in the normal eye. The globe of the eye of the astigmatic eye is not perfectly round, but is more curved in the up and down meridian than in the right and left meridian, for instance. This irregularity of curvature is slight the eye doesn't mind the trifling additional effort required to focus light to a point; in fact, practically every eye shows some slight astigmatism. It is measured correctly. But when the astigmatic irregularity is great, then the effort required to prevent blurring of things corresponds to the astigmatism, and the individual is likely to have symptoms. This is called eye-strain.

A patient may have a floating kidney or a prolapsed colon or stomach, or a prolapse of other organs, yet be unaware of any trouble and suffer no disturbance of health, so long as the general muscle (and nerve) tone remains good. But let that patient grow weak from any cause, and then the looseness of anatomy begins to impress itself on consciousness and the patient suffers all kinds of unpleasant symptoms which call for treatment. It is the same with eyestrain from astigmatism. Most of us are unaware of our astigmatism. But if we lose health or strength from other causes the eyestrain may begin to annoy us and call for at least temporary relief. Thus it happens that we put on glasses and find them a great relief for a time, and later, perhaps, having regained health or strength again, the glasses become once more unnecessary and we discard them, much to the disgust of friends who think we must be finicky or affected about wearing glasses.

Dr. Brady hates to see anything squandered. Why do so many people wear the blackboard clearly, as does a child with normal eyes, and not seeing clearly the child fails to make good progress in school. Take some astigmatism. Before you decide that he is "backward," that which is as plain as day to his schoolmates may be an indistinct blur to the astigmatic child. If an astigmatic person gazes steadily, with one eye covered, at an astigmatic dial, which is a black wheel with many black spokes on a white surface, placed so near from the eye, he notices that some spokes appear much larger and more distinct than others.

Why do so many people wear the blackboard clearly, as does a child with normal eyes, and not seeing clearly the child fails to make good progress in school. Take some astigmatism. Before you decide that he is "backward," that which is as plain as day to his schoolmates may be an indistinct blur to the astigmatic child. If an astigmatic person gazes steadily, with one eye covered, at an astigmatic dial, which is a black wheel with many black spokes on a white surface, placed so near from the eye, he notices that some spokes appear much larger and more distinct than others.

Will you kindly tell me how one should prepare a saturated solution of boric acid for use as an eye wash, gargle or mouthwash? (L. D. V.)

Answer:—Take a pint of quart bottle of water, add one-half ounce of freshly-boiled water (boiled half an hour). Add two or three teaspoonfuls of boric acid, and shake the bottle a few times. Let it stand. If none settles to bottom, keep adding a little more boric acid until some does settle to bottom on standing. Then use the clear solution from the top of the bottle, or if desired, pour off the clear solution into a clean bottle. When water or other fluid has taken away all the boric acid, and no other substance it will take up, we say it is a saturated solution.

SIDE TALKS

—BY— RUTH CAMERON

JUST A COLD.

I wonder if you shall ever again say so nonchalantly as we have in this story, "It's just a cold" or "Nothing but a cold," after this experience of what "just a cold" can grow into when it tries, is over. I hope not. I hope that people will learn what a wise thing it is to go right at a cold with rest, warmth, fresh air, laxatives, and gargles, the first moment it begins to send some chilly feeling up and down one's spine, and to cause the familiar and unpleasant sensation in nose and throat. (Don't wait till the second moment and then tell me the treatment didn't work.) Take perhaps the Empower Will Say. Take a Day Off.

I hope employers will learn that it is worth while to send the employee who shows signs of a cold home at once, with a picture to spend the day in rest, rather than wait until he or she has to be out several days and until half a dozen others have been infected. (This is a thing which my readers may remember. I advocated some years ago. Several employers at that time wrote in to say that they either had adopted that plan or were about to.)

Perhaps People Will Learn to Sneeze Properly.

I hope that people will come to realize that a sneeze, in spite of its funny noise it makes, is not really

STYLE

HAVE you ever observed that some women do not look well dressed no matter how expensive their clothes? They seem to lack that something called style.

Style does not come from the clothing one wears but from the figure that is underneath the clothing.

Some women naturally have a stylish appearance. It is the poise or balance of the figure that gives the easy, graceful movements when walking, stooping, turning, in fact doing anything that calls for the slightest muscular exertion.

The foundation of a correct figure is proper poise of the body maintained by the means of a properly poised corset. MODART Front Laced Corsets are poise designed. There is style in a MODART for each type of figure. They are designed to bring out the latent beauty of form which is every woman's inheritance and to add every possible touch of smartness.

A trial fitting of the MODART Corset, which is free by our corsetiere, will prove to you their distinctly smart style.

FIVE FRIDAYS

By FRANK R. ADAMS
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Company.

She consulted the magazine again. "We have to drink plenty of good, pure water and think high thoughts all the time, and we'll hardly notice the absence of food at all. Then next Monday we'll break our fast by drinking the juice of an orange and eating a handful of popcorn, just one handful so as not to shock our digestive apparatus by introducing anything solid into it."

But why harrow the reader with the rules and regulations which Lucile framed for us. Suffice it to say that they went into effect the next morning according to schedule.

We met at breakfast. I am never at my best before I drink my first cup of coffee in the morning and the thought of the inhuman way I was about to treat my "tumie" depressed me more than usual. The table was ghastly white, unbroken by the usual cheerful array of steaming hot dishes. At each place was a large glass of water and a napkin. What the napkin was for I failed to discover. I imagine it was what the anthropologists would call "a survival of culture."

"We have fifty-eight five gallon bottles of distilled water," Lucile informed us. "I wonder if that will be enough. It amounts to nearly a hundred gallons apiece."

I made a hasty calculation and decided that a hundred gallons of drinking water would last me the rest of my life.

Mrs. Green, Lucile's mother, was patently cheerful and drank three glasses of water like a sponge. I didn't care much for mine. I had previously had no idea that water was so flat and tasteless. It is also an extraordinarily elusive and clammy thing to put into an empty stomach which is eagerly expecting bacon and eggs, muffins and coffee.

"I feel better already," Lucile said gaily as we left the table. "My mind is clear—I have wasted none of my vital energy in merely digesting food."

I knew that she was quoting Lipton S. Clair, whom I was beginning to regard with disfavor, to say the least, but I refrained from voicing my opinion of a man who will help women to get even more fool ideas than they can think up by themselves.

I took a cigar from my pocket, cut the tip off carefully with a silver cut for Lucile had given me the previous Christmas and was about to light it when she stopped me.

"No, no, no! you mustn't. Did I forget to tell you that while we are fasting we have to give up all stimulants and narcotics, such as alcohol and tobacco?"

"What—cut out smoking for a week?" "Certainly," she replied firmly. "In the first place, if you don't you will be doctored. In the second place, the whole object of the fast is to rid the body of all toxic poisons, such as nicotine, alcohol and so forth. By the time you have done without tobacco for a week I should not be surprised if you never smoked again."

"Nor me either," I reflected gloomily out loud. "I'll be dead."

"Of course if you don't care to make the experiment," Lucile said icily. "I'll put off the fasting for another week until Frank Bopp is here. I'm sure he will be willing to try it."

This was waving a red flag at me. Frank Bopp was my rival. After her reference to him I would have gone without breathing for a week if she had suggested it. Bopp is a thin, conversational insect who can perch on the arm of a girl's chair and chirp by the hour. Sometimes I regret that for architectural and educational reasons I can't do that, and then I remember what other men would think of me if I could, and I am soothed. I refrain from saying what I think of the name "Bopp."

Thus through my love and jealousy I was led into deeper water or, shall I say, more water because somebody handed me a glass of the stuff every few minutes. I drank it in the vain hope that I could drown the inner man, who seemed to be yelling for help all the time and kicking me just below the belt buckle when he didn't get it.

That morning we went for a walk. "Walking is the best exercise in the world," Lucile stated. "It is excellent for reducing surplus flesh around the abdominal region."

Invariably she had a little stinger for the concealed in any remark she might make. I have since learned that this is a sign that a woman takes a proprietary interest in a man.

Before we went she fed Tootles, her long haired pup. Tootles is one of those dogs so constructed by nature that when you want to look them in the face you don't know where to look. I often wonder if Tootles herself isn't in doubt as to which end to wag.

"Isn't Tootles going to fast, too?" I protested. "Can't she stand it as well as I can?"

"Possibly she could do it," Lucile said, as she gave her a dog biscuit, "but she hasn't intelligence enough to understand why she should go without food."

Am not far above Tootles in intelligence, then, I remarked, but under my breath this time, so she could not hear. After watching Tootles eat we went walking. Whenever I go walking in the city I hate a taxicab. If I want to see nature in all her grandeur I do go tramping through the woods? I do not. I buy a seat at a moving picture show where there are running a western outlay film. "Nature for a nickel" is my motto. Fatigue is eliminated, and the sum total of knowledge is advanced several thousand feet.

After we had covered several miles, as it seemed to me, I suggested that we had better not go much further away from home.

"Why not?" Lucile queried. "We might not get back in time for lunch."

"I brought our lunch," she said and produced a flask of water.

I groaned. I had nearly forgotten that there was to be no lunch. It's curious how much you depend on meals to break up the day. All the morning long you keep thinking, "I must get so much done before lunch," and then in the afternoon you spur yourself on to an extra effort with the thought of a better dinner than usual when you get through. Take these meal landmarks out of your day and what is left? Nothing but a dreary, dead level desert of time, a day whose limits seem interminable.

"How many days is it until we eat again?" I asked hopelessly.

"Six and a half," Lucile computed. "Then we get some orange juice and a few kernels of popcorn."

"Then what?"

"That's all for the first day."

A few kernels of popcorn! Can you imagine a kernel of popcorn floating hither and yon in all that sea of water and finally giving up with a despairing shriek when it finds there is no place to land?

"You mustn't think of things to eat. You're not really hungry. It is your imagination. Tighten your belt and you won't know that you haven't eaten."

I followed her advice. True enough, the belt was quite loose. A terrible thought struck me—a few days of fasting and I would have to wear suspenders! I had always prided myself on a self supporting figure, as it were, and had jeered at the fence rail build which is obliged to hang all its garments from its shoulders. Already with one meal missing I was up to the last notch in my belt.

Along toward noon I noticed a distinct headache.

"That will pass away," Lucile assured me. "Lipton S. Clair says so, and he ought to know."

"Why ought he to know?" I snapped. "Did he invent headaches, or is he just generalizing from reading about somebody else's headache? This pain I've got here has settled in my region of thought for a long run, and I defy any Lipton S. Clair to drive it out."

"Don't be cross," Lucile soothed. "Let me dip my handkerchief in this spring here and wet your forehead with it."

She did, and while it didn't do any good I always like to have her fussing around me.

The spring is one that every one visits who comes to the island, and there is a tin cup sitting on a rock near by. I started to get a drink.

"You mustn't drink that water," Lucile stopped me. "You must not drink anything but distilled water while you are fasting."

"Why not?"

"Because when there is nothing else in the stomach is particularly susceptible to disease."

That was more of L. S. Clair's magazine stuff. I knew it. Probably he got about 5 cents a word for it too.

"That water, pure as it is, may have microbes in it," she continued.

"What chance would a microbe have against my stomach?" I returned bitterly, but I refrained from drinking the water. In those days that woman had me under her thumb.

At nightfall we sat around that white table once more. I think even Lucile's enthusiasm was wavering. It seemed distinctly more of an effort to be cheerful than it had at breakfast. Her mother was frankly miserable and eyed me with a glance which warned me that

Rebuilding Health After Any Illness

Getting Well Means Gaining Strength—A Whole-some Tonic.

The getting-well stage of grip, pneumonia or other illness is the most dangerous of all because the body, weakened by the disease, is wide open to attacks of other lurking germs.

That is why all the organs of the body must be kept in their best working order, not only to drive out the poison left by the disease, but that the patient shall regain strength as soon as possible to avoid further attacks resulting from the poisons in the system.

As a means toward good health after any illness Father John's Medicine builds up the body because it is all pure wholesome nourishment and free from opium, morphine, chloroform or other poisonous drugs or alcohol. Father John's Medicine has had sixty years' success for colds and throat troubles, coughs and sore throats, and as a tonic and body builder.

"It's Johnston's laugh," said Mrs. Green.

we were cannibals the laws of hospitality would hardly protect one of my build.

"Have some water, Mr. Blainey," Lucile said.

"I won't drink another drop tonight," I declared, "unless I can have some flavoring extract in it."

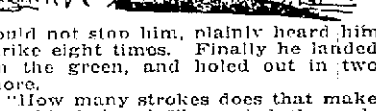

After that we sat around thinking about sweet potatoes and hash and steaks, but talking about the latest books and the moonlight through the trees. But what is moonlight on an empty stomach? Merely moonlight, nothing more.

"What's that?" demanded Lucile, straining her ears to catch some sound out on the water. There was a faint "put-put" out somewhere.

Dinner Stofies

He had been getting on very well, and his drive from the third had landed in a deep bunker. He disappeared down the hole in pursuit of the ball, and his caddy, though he could not stop him, plainly heard him strike the ball. Finally he landed on the green, and holed out in two more.

"How many strokes does that make for this hole, sir?" queried the caddy.

"Seven," came the unabashed reply. "But I heard you take eight in the bunker, sir," said the caddy.

"There was dead silence for a moment, and then came the answer: 'That may be, but you know there's a most infernal echo down there!'"

A stranger arrived one day in a busy provincial town and gazed around uncertainly. Presently he spotted a man who appeared to be a native, and he said to him:

"Excuse me, sir," he said, "but are you a resident of this town?"

"I am," rejoined the other. "What can I do for you?"

"I am sending a criminal lawyer," replied the stranger. "I wonder if you could direct me to one?"

"I believe I can," answered the native, "but mind you, we've never actually proved it against him."

"You sold my husband a parrot, did you not?" queried the woman.

"Yes, ma'am, I did."

"And you told him it could talk, did you not?"

"Certainly told him that, ma'am."

"Well, we've had it a week, and he hasn't spoken a word yet."

"Remember, distinctly, ma'am, telling your husband the parrot would talk if you gave him a chance."

"JANESVILLE a FRIENDLY TOWN"

"I like to deal at Janesville. Can get anything on earth that I want, over there---as cheap or cheaper than anywhere else---and it's a friendly town."

A prosperous farmer was heard to make this remark the other day, to one of his neighbors.

This is EXACTLY the way Janesville's business men WANT outsiders to feel and talk about their town--and it is just this sort of GOOD-WILL, that every merchant, and every professional man in Janesville is going out of his way to build up.

It's as easy to make a FAVORABLE impression, as it is to make an UNFAVORABLE one--all is in the WILL to please or displease, according to the direction in which a man is headed.

There isn't a SHOP, or STORE, or OFFICE, or any other kind of BUSINESS place in all Janesville that doesn't sincerely TRY to create a good opinion in the mind of every stranger that comes in.

This is as it OUGHT to be. When the right kind of a man meets a fellow man that he never met before, he's face to face with an OPPORTUNITY. There's his chance to MAKE A NEW FRIEND--no man can have too many friends in this world--so long as he wins them honorably--and it's to WIN friends, honorably, and build for the YEARS TO COME, that Janesville business men are STRIVING AT EVERY TURN!

Janesville right now is stocked up with all kinds of merchandise ready for the Fall and Winter trade---is loaded to the muzzle, cocked and primed with kindness and the desire to serve.

What is it that you need? It's HERE! No other city in all the southern part of Wisconsin is any better fitted to furnish you with what you want, than Janesville is right now.

Bert Moses says: "If you PLEASE the public, it will BUY what you have to SELL!"

Janesville is banking on her ability to PLEASE YOU!"

COME OVER and TRADE!
